Billings, Montana - Montana Agri-Women met with Dr. Jeff Golini, founder and owner of All American Pharmaceutical and toured the facility. It was an opportunity to show their support for a Montana manufacturing business using commodities grown right here in the state.

“Point of origin manufacturing provides a direct demand for the high quality goods that Montana producers can supply.” –Melody Dobson, President, Montana Agri-Women

All American Pharmaceutical, based in Billings, Montana is one of the United States largest FDA approved manufacturer of dietary supplements and nutraceuticals.

“I appreciate groups like Montana Agri-Women for advocating and working for agriculture. They study the issues, encourage funding and new developments for using the commodities grown right here in the state. – Dr. Jeff Golini, founder, All American Pharmaceutical.

Golini shared how through their state of the art Research & Development Department, they are providing commercialization of new products containing Montana grown yellow peas. Montana yields the highest quality yellow Peas in the nation. Peas are a pulse crop introduced as a rotation program for farmers seeking to replenish the soil with nitrogen. Universal demand for “pea protein” is creating a new sustainable market. It’s a great win-win for the state.

“All American pharmaceutical is a fantastic company to have in the heart of Montana. Dr. Golini is a great leader dedicated to using Montana agricultural products which is so vital for our state’s economic stability and growth.” – Kellie Kittelmann, Past President, MAW
